POWERS PLEADS FOR HIRAM TYREE

He Contends No Crime Is Shown and Bitterly Denounces F. M.

REE SET FREE,

Judge O. W. Powers, attorney for Hi ram Tyree, president of the Continental Life Insurance & Investment company, charged with filing a false annual statement with the secretary of state, opened his argument for the defense yesterday in Judge C. B. Dishl's court, where the case is having a preliminary airing. Judge Powers said no evidence had been sub-mitted detrimental to Mr. Tyree.

F. M. Raiff was denounced and his testimony branded as false and the result of personal grievances. "No man should be condemned upon the testimony of such a wretch as this witness, Raiff," said the speaker, who said Raiff had been loyal to the company until the check he was accustomed to receive falled to be forthcoming. Judge Powers asserted that the whole prosecution hinged upon the bitter jealousy of a few individuals who wished to remove several of the present officers of the company and themselves fill the vacancies thus made, or have their friends do so. testimony branded as false and the re-

All Dealings Above Suspicion.

"The attack made against Mr. Tyree is insignificant in itself when the injury resulting to the company is considered," continued the speaker, and charged that thousands of dollars invested in the conthousands of dollars invested in the con-cern are in danger of being lost through the prosecution directed against its head. Judge Powers argued that the books of the company showed that all business performed by the company was above board. Mr. Tyree's actions had been concurred in by the officials of the com-pany. The attorney declared that the company was "as solid as a rock finan-cially."

The sworn testimony of Colonel George
B. Squires, assistant secretary of state, was dwelt upon at length by the speaker.
"This witness testified that not one cent was diverted from its proper channels. There was nothing in the company's books to show that there had been the slightest defalcation, embezziement or misappropriation of funds," argued the Discusses Promotion Account.

"The entries made under wrong heads were simply mistakes made by the bookkeeper in charge," sai? Judge Powers. "There has been no suggestion here that Mr. Harding juggled the books. No such thing is shown to have been done, and the prosecution has failed to show that Tyree had any connection with the books. No one can be blamed for a mistake in bookkeepirg where the accounts were charged up in the wrong place. It can't be said to be more than a technical violation, if it was a violation at all."

The promotional account of $13,250, which the prosecution maintained should have been added to the expenditure account for 1904, was discussed by Judge Powers, who said this amount had been accepted as a promotion fund and was properly an asset. A committee, comprise brought up by Judge Powers, who asserted that these sums of money were really received before Dec. 31.

"These receipts were simply delayed receipts, and although deposited upon Jan. 3. 1905, belonged to the account of the previous year. Jan. 1 fell on Sunday, and the following Monday being a holiday the banks were closed, making it impossible to deposit these receipts sooner. The receipts bore a December date," declared the attorney.

the attorney.

It was at this point in his argument that Judge Powers attacked Raiff. After calling this witness a falsifier, the speaker explained to the court that Raiff had sent a telegram to Mr. Tyree swearing loyalty and then, three days afterward, sent other telegrams breathing vengeance.

The speaker asserted that these telegrams explained clearly the conspiracy that had been concocted by a few dissatisfied employes of the company who desired Mr. Tyree's removal, and were ready to adopt any means to effect it.

"A man who attempts to wreck the company by which he is employed should be shown little consideration," exclaimed the attorney.

Argument Not Ended.

"We have here a technical case, if any," concluded Judge Powers. "To hold Mr. Tyree to the criminal court would be an injustice. It would be an injustice to the stockholders and the policy-holders, and no good could come of it."

Judge Powers had not finished his argument when the court adjourned. The gument when the court adjourned. The case will be continued until Monday morning.

A surprise was sprung by Assistant County Attorney Job P. Lyon when he asked that the case against Cameron C. Wylie, who is being tried jointly with Mr. Tyree, be dismissed. This was granted.
